

Andechs Monastery

Located on the Holy Mountain above the eastern shore of Lake Ammersee in the middle of Upper Bavaria's Five-Lakes Region, Andechs Monastery is easily visible from far away.

For more than half a millennium it has been a cherished destination for pilgrims.

Andechs Monastery - with its brewery, Bräustüberl, monastery restaurant, and not least its rich cultural offerings in the representational environs of the "Fürstentrakt" and the Florian Stadl multi-purpose hall - is a much sought after meeting place attracting visitors from around the world.

In 1995 Rainer Maria Latzke was commissioned to perform ceiling frescoes for the Monastery's new establishment next to the dome. For months he was guest in the monastery where he painted the murals on large canvasses which were then pasted onto the ceilings.
